Right Beginnings announces launch of a 'Jobs For Women Program'

Leonard Upson, Executive Director of Right Beginnings, Inc, announced that the Right Beginnings Jobs For Women Program will commence operations on October 1, 2019.

The Program will serve victims of domestic violence that are residents of the District of Columbia through a collaborative effort with the Freddi House emergency shelter program.

The Program is designed to provide participants access to both online and live educational and vocational training, courses and curriculums covering a wide field of subjects in addition to providing various individual and group sessions relating to various counseling programs and services.

The goal of the Program is to provide participating women access to job training, experience and assistance in qualifying, locating and securing self sustaining employment. Mr. Upson stated, "Our goal is to enable participants to achieve financial stability while rebuilding their lives."

The Program is free and completely voluntary to potential participants. Over 150 women are expected to be offered access to the Program in the first year.

Initial financial support for the Program has been provided by the Wells Fargo Foundation and the Toyota Foundation.

Right Beginnings, Inc. is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization formed for the charitable purpose of providing programs and services to women victims of domestic violence and related abuse.
